49 Families Given a New Beginning

Through the grace of God and the generous support of our ministry partners, LYNM has helped 49 families gain freedom from bonded labor in brick kilns in Gujranwala District, Punjab.

For years, these families lived and worked under the burden of debt. They had limited choices, few opportunities, and little hope of escaping the cycle of poverty and exploitation. They were trapped in a cycle which affected their Children's future and made freedom seem almost impossible. Through the Freedom Project, these families have been given a new beginning and an opportunity to build a more secure future.

From Bondage to Sustainable Livelihoods

Freedom is not only about leaving the brick kiln. It is also about having the opportunity to build a life of dignity, independence and hope. families are now able to keep their children in school and give the next generation hope for a different future from the one they inherited.

To help families establish sustainable sources of income, LYNM provided support for fruit carts, small grocery shops, and other small businesses. These opportunities are helping families earn an honest living, meet their daily needs, and provide better opportunities for their children. Every small business represents something much bigger: a family moving from dependency toward independence, from uncertainty toward stability, and from surviving each day toward planning for tomorrow.

"A New Beginning for My Family"

"For many years, we worked at the brick kiln because of our debt. We felt trapped and could not imagine a different future for our children. Through the Freedom Project, we were given the opportunity to leave bonded labor and start our life again. Today, we have a small business that allows us to earn an income without slavery mindset. We thank God for giving our family hope and a new beginning."

"My Children Can Go to School"

"Life at the brick kiln was very difficult. Our greatest concern was always how to provide food for our children and keep them in school. After receiving support to start a small grocery shop, we now have a way to earn a living without returning to bonded labor. We are thankful that our children have a better opportunity for their future."

"Freedom Has Given Us Hope"

"We lived for years under the burden of debt and felt that there was no way out. The Freedom Project helped our family become free and gave us the support we needed to start a small business. Now we can work for ourselves, support our children, and look toward the future with hope. We are deeply grateful to God and to everyone who supported this project."

Why This Matters

The Freedom Project is helping families move from bondage to freedom, from uncertainty to opportunity, and from poverty toward a more hopeful future. Every fruit cart, grocery shop, and small business represents more than an income it represents dignity, independence, and hope for the next generation.
